

Andreas Repa – Short Bio

Prof. Andreas Repa is a pediatrician and neonatologist who serves as a consultant in the Department of Pediatrics at the Medical University of Vienna, where he has held various roles since 2000.

He is an Associate Professor at the Medical University of Vienna, with a research focus on neonatal clinical nutrition outcomes. Prof. Repa has led and participated in clinical trials and cohort studies, including serving as principal investigator in a trial on the impact of parenteral lipid emulsions in pre-term infants. His research interests include neonatal medicine, clinical nutrition, probiotics, allergology, immune response, and neurodevelopment.